CANYON VOTES DOWN WRAGGE PARK PROJECT

SIX BALLOTS WERE MADE OUT INCORRECTLY.

Of 331 Votes Cast, 276 Were Not In Favor of Park Proposition.

The Wragge Park bonds which were voted on last Monday failed with more than a five to one vote. Of the 331 votes cast, six were thrown out because they were mutilated. Of the remainder, 276 were against the project, and 49 were for it.

The project, if it had been accepted by the citizens of Canyon, would have allowed the city of Canyon to buy the Herman Wragge place one half mile north of Canyon and would have authorized certain improvements upon it for its use as a city park.

Although this election puts an end to the hopes of making Wragge Park a city park, it is not known whether the citizens of Canyon objected to the site of the proposed park or to any and all parks.

The accident occurred when the boys in passing a wagon, blinded Mr. Stoker and the two cars collided head on. Both cars were completely demolished. The occupants were found entangled in the wreckage. The Stokers were returning from Amarillo where they had been for repairs for some machinery

Raymond's chest and back were crushed and broken by the steering wheel of the car he was driving. Cecil's skull was fractured and his hands injured, one was mangled and the other broken. Also his head and body were severely cut and bruised. After receiving emergency treatment in Canyon he has taken to Amarillo by ambulance. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Slaton of this city.

Mrs. Stoker's nose was broken; her face, right hand and knee were cut and bruised. Mr. Stoker was cut about the head and left eye. Both were rushed to Canyon where they were treated for their injuries.

Several Changes Made in Faculty for Second Term

Changes have been made in the faculty of several departments for the second six weeks of the summer school at the College.

Oscar Kinchen of the department of history of Texas Technological College is taking the place of Lawrence Hill, who is doing research work in Austin.

C. A. Cryer, superintendent of the Dimmitt schools, is filling the place of S. H. Condron, head of the department of government, who is working on his degree of doctor of philosophy at Colorado State Teachers College at Greeley, Colo.

HIGH AVERAGE WHEAT AT HEREFORD

Harvey Cash, Jr., is expected home Friday from Hereford where he has been working for the past three weeks on the wheat farm of his uncle, E. S. Ireland, which is 15 miles south of Hereford.

The wheat on the 600 acres averaged 45 bushels to the acre with as much as 61 bushels to the acre in some places on the farm. At times the combine would overfill making it necessary to stop the tractor until the combine could catch up. Heads on the wheat were six inches in length; the wheat was four and one half feet high in many places, according to Mrs. Harvey Cash.

Another record average is that of John L. Sullivan of Amarillo who has a 1050 acre farm in the southwest corner of Randall county. He harvested 29,000 bushels from the farm. On 110 acres which were summer fallowed he averaged 45 bushels to the acre.

DARNALL SPOKE TO ROTARIANS TUESDAY NOON

"EDUCATION, NOT LAW, TO LESSEN CRIME."

Canyon Club Got Twelfth Place Among 61 Clubs for Attendance.

F. M. Darnall of the department of English of the College was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club last Tuesday noon. Introduced by D. A. Shirley of the Aims and Objects committee, Dr. Darnall spoke on "The Futility of Law as a Constructive Force in Civilization."

That law is a temporary restraining force because of fear of punishment rather than a constructive force and that there are more constructive things than law such as inculcation of ideals for right living through education as provided in schools, churches, and such organizations as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and so forth, was the gist of Dr. Darnall's talk.

Rev. R. L. Flowers, guest of the club, added a few words; he said that of 1776 men in the penitentiary at McAllister, Oklahoma, a few years ago, only three had ever been to Sunday School.

Oscar Gano, vice president of the club, read a report which gave the Canyon club twelfth place among 61 clubs for attendance per cent for the past year.

Visiting Rotarians at the club were: Law Sone of Panhandle, N. L. Mudd, Gaines Whitsett, P. C. Bennett and Bill Perry, all of Amarillo.

Guests of the club were: F. M. Darnall of Canyon, Rev. F. L. Flowers of Georgetown, J. A. Buckingham of Amarillo, and Kenneth Fink of Clarendon.

Flowers Revival Continues With Good Attendance

The Methodist revival which is being conducted by Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Flowers has been attracting large crowds. The meetings which started last Sunday will continue for about ten days.

Seats have been constructed in the street east of the Methodist church where the evening meetings are held. A large platform has been erected to take care of the choir, and a space has been cut off to take care of the orchestra. With the two big choirs and the orchestra, the singing is one of the attractive features of the meetings.

Rev. and Mrs. Flowers conducted the Methodist revival here in 1927; they have been doing evangelistic work for 17 years.

Four services are held daily in the meetings. The first service is held in the morning at 10 o'clock; the second service at 5 o'clock is for the boys and girls. At 7:30 o'clock a meeting is for the high school boys and girls only. The song service for the night meeting begins at 8 o'clock.

College Band to Give Concert on Campus Tonight

The College Band will give a concert of selected music at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening in front of the Administration Building of the College. The concert will last about an hour, according to C. E. Strain, director.

The citizens of Canyon as well as the students are cordially invited to attend.

The band played for the Presbyterian encampment at Ceta Canyon last Thursday evening. Twenty-five members of the band made the trip, according to Mr. Strain. After the concert, the members had a picnic at the canyon.

Only two members have dropped out of the band with the beginning of the second six weeks, but both of these places have been filled, Mr. Strain said.

Presbyterians Hike Down Into Canyons Friday

About seventy members of the Panhandle Presbyterian conference in session in the Ceta Canyon about 25 miles southeast of here visited the Palo Duro Park, 12 miles east of Canyon Friday afternoon as a part of the recreational program of the conference. The conference opened July 14, and closed on July 21st.

For the most part, members of this group of visitors had never seen the colorful canyons at the park site. A long hike covering several miles down into the bottom of the canyon was made. Here an opportunity was given for them to see the beautiful shades of the various colored walls of the canyons. From the depths of the canyon they looked up to the cliffs and top rim to see picturesque sights that many had never dreamed could exist in this section of the country.

At the conclusion of the hike a picnic lunch was spread on the level plains as the sun was sinking in the west, casting beautiful and lengthy shadows to mingle with the colors of the canyon. This was the first hiking group ever to make a special visit to the park for the purpose of exploring the depths of the Palo Duro.

Two Texas Tech Geology Students Visit Palo Duro

H. F. Hopkins and E. W. Byars, geological students of Texas Technological College, Lubbock, were in Canyon a few days ago and spent the greater portion of the day in the Palo Duro canyon at the Palo Duro Park They were here for the purpose of visiting the canyons to see if they could find anything of geological interest to the students of the Lubbock College.

While here they visited the Chamber of Commerce office and interviewed the secretary, Fred E. Wortham, for the purpose of obtaining material to write a feature story for a San Antonio newspaper which had requested such a story. Cecil Horne, head of the department of journalism at Tech, will write the story.

The two students said that they had located many interesting formations that might prove of great interest to the geological students at Tech. It is probable that more students will visit the canyons to study them.

Mastodon Fossil To Be Given To P. P. H. Society

The fossil of a mastodon recently unearthed northwest of Amarillo on the Castle Cliffs property, which is said to have roamed the Panhandle more than 25,000 years ago, will be presented to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society.

Work already done indicates that the mastodon was at least 15 feet high and weighed more than eight tons. One of the tusks, although it has been broken off, is more than nine feet long. It probably was more than 13 feet long originally. It is of ivory in a splendid state of preservation.

Floyd Studer, who has charge of the excavation, covers the fossil with shellac and gauze to preserve it as soon as it is uncovered. It is guarded day and night to keep vandals from destroying it.

Mr. Studer has uncovered 91 other sites where fossils may be secured. These will also be given to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society.

EDD REYNOLDS GETS RESULTS

Edd Reynolds of Dawn, ran an ad in the classified section last week for a horse and two mules which he had lost. When he was in the News office Monday morning to ask that the ad be discontinued, he said that for two days before the ad was sent in he had driven about 200 miles looking for the animals. "The morning after the paper was issued," he continued, "I received word of their whereabouts from John Weyen because of that ad."

THE SPECIAL SESSION OPENS.

By Clyde W. Warwick
Representative 123rd District

The first called session of the 42nd Legislature opened Tuesday of last week.

It was perhaps a little surprise to most of the members and the majority of the people of the State when Governor Sterling submitted his message. Not a word was said about proration, the thing that has been utmost in the minds of the oil people and has taken most of the space in the newspapers which have attempted to discuss the present deplorable situation in the oil industry.

The message was shown to the writer by Governor Sterling last Monday before it was read to the Legislature on Wednesday. The Governor pointed out the fact that in all of his discussions of the oil situation that never once had he referred to proration. He made it clear that this is a technical matter and only part of the great subject of conservation which he hopes that the Legislature will consider and make a real attempt to solve.

The first few days of the session has very clearly shown that the members of the 42nd Legislature are in session in a most serious state of mind and that they want to do something to help the oil men if possible.

Furthermore, a vast majority will admit that they do not know what to do and are therefore looking for leadership.

Governor Sterling is a practical oil man. He is a successful business man. He has been accustomed to dealing in business which amounted to millions whereas the average legislator's scope of mind is trained in the hundreds or a few thousands of dollars.

The Governor is cautious. He does not wish to assume a position which might prove in the end to be disastrous to his administration. He refrained from calling a special session until much pressure was brought to bear. Since he has called the session his friends believe that he should be the Moses to lead the band of Legislators to the supposed promised land of a better oil situation.

However, let it be understood that the critics of the Governor and his political enemies are not idly awaiting the opportunity for a pot shot from the ambush. They call him the tool of big business. They predict that he is the leader of the major oil companies and was unduly influenced in calling the special session in the interest of the big major oil producing companies, therefore, they are not sitting by and awaiting a proposal from the Governor, but are assuming an aggressive attitude not only of criticism of any attempt to delay legislation, but also may be expected to impede as much as possible any bill which the Governor happens to sponsor.

An East Texas newspaper printed a special edition with a front page editorial headed, "Stick to Business Gentlemen," as a friendly message to the Legislators. This newspaper trusted that politics and political ambitions would be forgotten for the thirty-day period and that an honest effort would be made to solve the oil tangle.

In the first test vote, the Satterwhite resolution to make a sweeping investigation of the oil industry was killed by the close vote of 64 to 61. The resolution was defective to the extent that it was proposed to investigate all phases of the oil industry in a period of eight days. This would have been entirely impossible. It was charged that Satterwhite was leading the anti-administration forces and sought to start something as a counter action against passing a bill which would be favorable to the Governor and his friends. This the author denied. The resolution was subsequently changed and passed by a large majority vote. The investigation is now on, and may point the way to something better.

The question of conservation is one of the biggest in the State and if acted upon in this session it will be a busy 30 days under the big dome at Austin. Conservation is applied not only to oil but also to all kinds of minerals of which there are several in Texas; to water, lumber, and to soil. The latter is one of the biggest questions and will bring forth much discussion.

It is predicted that the Governor will win in advocating a new department to have charge of conservation. It is realized that the Railroad Commission is badly split with little or no chance of an efficient administration of the oil and gas divisions.

The wheat raisers of West Texas as well as the hog raisers, the cattlemen and dairy men would be glad if the Legislature could help them along with the oil men. In fact, the whole situation seems to be one of economics and students of the situation are wondering whether or not the Legislature can solve by law an economic situation. There is one difference; under present conditions natural resources are actually being wasted. A farmer can plant another crop if he fails to get a good price for the one this year, but if the oil man takes the oil out of the ground and gives it away or wastes his gas in producing cheap oil, he is doing violence to the welfare of the coming generation as well as taking from the State Treasury money to which all of the people are entitled to run their State government. That is the reason that this special session of the Legislature has been called by the Governor and it is the same reason that the members of the 42nd Legislature are making an honest effort to pass some kind of a bill which will be beneficial to the State as a whole.

Ples Harper Takes M.A. Degree; Edith Ellis is in Spain

Ples Harper has received his Master of Arts Degree from the University of Washington at Seattle. Ples Harper is a well known graduate of W. T. and received his Bachelor of Arts Degree from this college in 1929. His work as a Spanish major was outstanding and we note with interest that after three quarters work at the University of Washington he was awarded his second degree with honors.

Another Spanish graduate of W. T. is getting honors. Dr. Hill states that in a recent letter from Edith Ellis he learned that the latter is working on her Ph. D. in Central University at Madrid, Spain. Miss Ellis is also a Spanish major and her work here attracted a good deal of attention. She received her Bachelor of Arts at W. T. and her Master of Arts at Columbia University.

Chamber of Commerce News

By Fred E. Wortham, Secretary

Here's a "believe it or not" statement to begin the day. Canyon has fewer vacant buildings than any city or town of any size in the entire Panhandle country.

Another thing of interest to the people of Canyon might be that the Chamber of Commerce has received three inquiries during the past ten days seeking information relative to the location of new businesses here. Each inquiry was of a different nature.

Each year thousands and thousands of dollars of hard earned cash is carried out of each town in the United States by men peddling fake advertising. There are two kinds of advertising sold. Honest to goodness advertising and advertising schemes. Advertising itself pays but advertising schemes are just another means of getting the business man's hard earned cash.

In most cities in the state there is no organized manner in which to combat these fly-by-night and crooked advertising salesmen. However, Canyon is an exception to the rule. The Chamber of Commerce has for a long time made it possible for a merchant to have any scheme thoroughly analyzed by a committee which takes time to study any such scheme presented. Every member of the chamber of commerce is entitled to call the secretary at any time and request that any advertising plan be examined and passed on. It is said that many towns lose, through fake advertising, enough money each year to more than carry on the work of the chamber of commerce.

Merchants, take advantage of this part of the chamber of commerce service and don't sign for some kind of advertising unless you know just what it is.

This subject is growing more alarming over the state all the time. Many cities are appealing to various merchants and business men's organizations for methods to combat such grafts.

The latest issue of the Texas Commercial News prints an editorial on "Fake Advertising."

"A million dollars in one year is the amount saved by the Better Business Bureaus of Texas from going into the hands of advertising grafters and promotion sharks, as shown on page nine of this magazine in an article by Wesley Gilliland, manager of the Better Business Bureau of Dallas. Why every city and town in Texas does not have its Better Business Bureau is a mystery.

"That such an organization works effectively in smaller towns than Dallas is shown by the fact that many smaller Texas cities have similar organizations, some times under different names.

"Among the smaller cities with an outstanding and effective organization is Lubbock. It is claimed that it saved its business men the huge sum of $38,000 in 1930."

Cars leaving the Palo Duro Park now are bearing stickers to advertise the park to the world at large. This new feature of advertising for the park is being furnished jointly by the Amarillo and Canyon chambers of commerce. Every car in Canyon should have one or two stickers on it. When you go anywhere the people are interested in what the new sticker is all about.

Stickers may be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce office. Call and get one for your car.

New letterheads for the Chamber of Commerce are now out and proclaim the fact that Randall county is the outstanding agricultural county in the Panhandle; Canyon is the Educational Home of Northwest Texas.

From everywhere attention is being turned to this section, because of its scenic attraction and because of the agricultural resources aside from the well known fact that this place offers more educational advantages than any other similar city.

Perhaps you didn't realize it but Canyon has a greater percentage of home owning residents than any other city in the Panhandle.

Practice buying at home for a while and see if it doesn't help your feelings. Canyon is your home, leave your money here so it will benefit your neighbor and friends. It takes Canyon money to improve the city through the expenditure of tax funds. The outside world doesn't care how much Canyon does or does not progress and improve. The outside world isn't interested in what conveniences are provided you by your county and city.

Buy in Canyon.

Let's keep our city clean. With every citizen doing his share not to allow trash and rubbish to accumulate or blow around on our streets we can have the cleanest looking city in the entire Panhandle—one of which we shall all be proud.

Within a few weeks thousands and thousands of people will read of Canyon and Randall county through the booklets to be distributed by the Panhandle of Texas, Inc., telling to the world of the educational advantages of this city, and the outstanding agricultural resources. We cannot say too much of our fine agricultural section. Randall county is well blessed with lands better adapted to all-round farming purposes than most any other country in the Panhandle. We have many farms and farmers over this county of which we should feel unusually proud of their accomplishments.

A drive over the countryside will be very interesting at this time. Notice the splendid prospects and compare them with others you hear of and then you'll come home proud and satisfied that you live in good old Randall county.

A very, very interesting thing at the present time is the numerous gardens to be found in every section. Also, these gardens are the most promising of all crops. Almost every one is beautiful, as gardens go and we all appreciate the good things which come from a splendid garden.

Thinking about gardens, one is reminded that in most recent years when wheat was bringing $1.00 per bushel and more, there were many less gardens growing and thriving in this country. On every farm where there is a garden now, and they are almost twice as plentiful as they were two years ago, the price of wheat will be greatly offset by canned vegetables this winter.

During the present world-wide economic crisis and financial depression it is interesting to note that the savings deposit in Canyon banks increased from $45,744.53 in March of this year to $52,940.59 by June 30.

THREE THESES REPORTED TO W. T. SEMINAR

ARE FINAL REPORTS FOR THE FIRST SIX WEEKS; SEMINAR IS REPEATED.

During the last week of the first six-weeks term three more potential M. A. theses were presented before the W. T. Seminar, which is under the supervision of Dr. Harris M. Cook. These reports were the final ones for the first term, Dr. Cook states. The Seminar, education 501, is being repeated this term with six graduate students taking the work. The work of the Seminar, according to Dr. Cook, will be handled in a slightly different manner next year.

Due to the fact that no M. A. work is offered in departments other than that of education, Dr. R. P. Jarrett, head of the education department, is major professor for all graduate students this year. Dr. Jarrett always attends the presentation of theses before the seminar.

One of the theses presented Wednesday of last week had as its subject "Motivation of Vocabulary Study in the Seventh Grade," and was reported by Wilhelmina Oberst, with Dr. F. M. Darnall, head of the English department, as her minor professor. Dr. J. A. Hill, and Dr. Albert Barnett both attended the presentation of this subject, as specially interested guests. Miss Oberst's wasth e fourth thesis subject to have been presented in the seminar.

The fifth thesis presented before the seminar was that of Carmen Ulm, on "Parallels in Roman and Modern Civilization." This is a project in vitalizing the sutdy of Latin. Miss Ulm's report was made with Mr. J. S. Humphreys, head of the Latin department, as minor professor. Mrs. Tommie S. Montfort, supervisor of Latin in the W. T. High School was a special visitor at the presentation of this report.

The last report was that of Mable Rowan, whose subject is "Status of the Courses in Instrumental Class Instruction in the Public Schools." Mr. Wallace R. Clark, head of the music department of the college, is Miss Rowan's minor professor. Visitors at the presentation of her report were Dr. J. A. Hill, Miss Pauline Brigham, Mrs. L. N. George, Mrs. Park, Miss George, and Miss Mattie Mae Swisher.

Farms Increase In Number, But Size Decreases

A preliminary report of the farm census of 1930 of Randall county, which was released by the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Census, on June 30, 1931, indicates outstanding agricultural progress in this county during the past 10 years.

In many ways Randall county has made wide expansion in its agricultural resources. Between 1920 and 1930 the number of farms in the county increased from 383 to 843, showing practically 120 per cent increase. During that period of time 192,000 acres of land were added to that already in cultivation, giving the count a total of 649,527 acres in cultivation.

Despite the general belief that the farms in this county are increasing in size and the larger farms are becoming more numerous, the Federal Census figures show that the small sized farms are on the increase and the larger farms on the decrease. A study of the following figures will prove interesting:

Size of Farms	1930	1920
Under 3 acres	2	—
3 to 9 acres	18	2
10 to 19 acres	17	—
20 to 49 acres	38	3
50 to 99 acres	44	8
100 to 174 acres	100	25
175 to 259 acres	54	14
260 to 499 acres	224	98
500 to 999 acres	230	131
1,000 acres and over	116	102

The average size of the farms in this county decreased from 1,193.3 acres in 1920 to 770.5 acres in 1930.

Farm ownership in Randall county has increased from 257 to 447 in 10 years, although the number of acres operated by the farm owners has decreased. This gives added proof of a change from the larger farm in 1920 to a smaller and more diversified farming system by 1930. The value of farms operated by the owners increased during that time by about $5,000,000.

The value in farm lands and the buildings increased over $8,000,000 in this county during the last decade. Increase in the value of farm buildings alone was practically $1,000,000. Farm implements and machinery have trippled in value during the past 10 years, the value being fixed in 1930 at $1,741,420, as compared to $523,682 in 1930. The average value of the land and buildings on Randall county farms show an increase of $7.77 per acre, now being given at $31.84 per acre.

During the last decade the average cultivated for wheat increased almost 400 per cent. It gained from 40,245 acres in 1919 to 153,347 in 1929. The yield increased from 603,042 bushels in 1919 to 2,906,834 bushels in 1939.

The raising of chickens has more than doubled in the ten year period between 1920 and 1930. It is stated by the census figures that there are now over 70,000 chickens in the country. Horses show a slight decrease in number from 3,789 in 1920. There were 1,202 mules in the county in 1920. Latest census count shows a decrease of 319 from that number.

The 1930 count was 31,588 beef cattle, an increase of 1,294 in 10 years. Milk cows show a startling increase, jumping from 1,197 to 5,008 in the same period of time. Hogs show a slight decrease of about 400 in comparison with the figures of 1920.

ADVERTISING PAYS.

I would rather write about newspapers than any of the fine and useful institutions of modern culture and civilization. I like to think of them as alert sentinels of the public conscience, as crusaders for progress and prosperity, as unselfish champions of the right and traditional enemies of the wrong. They are all of that, and more; but if they survive, they must be business institutions, too.

However well managed newspaper plants may be, they seldom earn returns commensurate with the time and effort and talent expended. Indeed, were they not slaves to the subtle incense of printers' ink, did they not love their work more and money less, there would be no newspaper men and therefore no newspapers.

Yet business men—men who wouldn't think of asking the druggist to donate a five-cent drink—will resort to any device to slip into the newspaper advertising cameouflaged as news. They forget that newspapers are not some form of privately endowed philanthropy; they do not stop to think they ask a business institution to donate the only commodity it has for sale. (Subscriptions are obtained at an actual loss, for the business purpose of making valuable the space offered to advertisers. It costs any newspaper more to print and mail a year's production than the reader pays for it.)

There are two very good reasons why advertising should be presented in paid space. First, the advertiser who succeeds in "slipping in" unpaid advertising annoys and irritates the reader who feels he has been made the victim of a fraud; and, second, the newspaper that consistently permits advertising to appear in its news columns ceases to be a business institution and therefore soon ceases to be a newspaper.

Modern newspapers have a larger capital investment than the average business institution, skilled craftsmen must be employed, and large overhead expenses must be met. Properly supported, and with its advertising space sold at a legitimate profit, the newspaper can render the essential and constructive service expected by a critical public. Without that support and paid advertising, it quickly becomes a miserable reminder of the splendid institution that might have been.—Editorial Digest.

AMARILLO NEWS-GLOBE ADVOCATES MUSEUM HERE

Discovery of the skeleton of a prehistoric animal near Amarillo this week reminds all of us of the pressing need for carrying the proposed museum building at Canyon to an early completion. As stated by Floyd Studer, who has given more time and effort than any other Panhandle citizen to the preservation of these ruins, many pages of Panhandle history have been destroyed through lack of facilities for housing the treasures as they were unearthed.

Numerous scientific expeditions have removed valuable specimens of early life from the Panhandle, and the museums of many universities now possess prized exhibits which came from this section. Had the Panhandle been in position to house those remains as they were unearthed, there would have been on display here one of the greatest collections of its kind in America.

The proposed museum at Canyon, the goal of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, has been made possible by a $25,000 appropriation from the state. Raising private donations to match the state fund is the immediate task before the society. Let's complete that fund now and keep these exhibits at home.—Amarillo News.

RANDALL BOYS TRY FOR BEEF PRIZES

Two Randall county club boys are after the prize money of the Tri-State Fat Stock Show to be held in Amarillo next winter when attractive prizes will be offered on baby beeves raised by club boys of the Panhandle, according to county agent, W. H. Upchurch. These are Alton Donnell and Barney Ball.

These boys have entered into the project with much interest and have begun to use the best methods known to feed out the beef calves. Special rations of wheat and other grains are to be used by them. There are other boys in the county who contemplate entering in the Baby Beef contest before the time limit for enrolling has passed.

Missouri Neighbors Born 118 Years Ago Talk Over "Good Old Times"

WHEN an 118-year-old Missouri farmer goes to visit his 118-year-old neighbor, what do they talk about?

The question was answered recently when a listener-in found Thomas N. Kemp, born in Carroll county, Tennessee, Sept. 10, 1812, chatting with Benjamin Hodge, who was born Dec. 22, 1812, in England. The chat was on the doorstoop of the Hodge cabin near Poplar Bluff, Mo., and they talked of droughts, crops and the weather.

Never a word about the moratorium or the possibilities of auto-giro navigation did these old men utter. When conversation drifted away from present-day problems, they talked of the world as it was 100 years ago—a time that both remember clearly.

For more than 50 years "Uncle Tommy" Kemp and "Uncle Ben" Hodge had lived within 15 miles of each other. Each had been hearing for years about the other but it was not until a recent Sunday afternoon that a relative cranked up his small motor car and took Uncle Tommy over to see Uncle Ben.

"Glad to meet you," said the younger 118-year-old man to the other. "I've been hearing about you being a few months older than I."

"And I'm glad to see you, too," was the reply. "I've been curious to see the man that they said had lived almost as long as I have."

And then each told the other about his birthplace and his boyhood.

Ninety-five years ago Uncle Ben was injured when a stage coach, in which he was riding, rolled down a Tennessee mountain side.

"I wouldn't have to walk with these sticks," he said, indicating two canes, "if it hadn't been for that accident. My legs never have been the same since then."

Uncle Tommy also leaned on a support but his was only one cane.

"It's only here of late that I've had to have a stick," he said. "It must be the rheumatism."

As to sight, both again admitted with regret that they could not see as they once did.

"Until two years ago I could see to hit a bird with a rifle 50 yards away," said Uncle Tommy. "Now I can't hardly see at all at night."

And Uncle Ben added that he, too, had been going to bed with the chickens recently since walking after dark has become risky.

Mr. Kemp lives most of the time now with a granddaughter and her family. However, he still puts out a garden. Mr. Hodge continues to live in his own log cabin and to cultivate a small piece of ground, but most of the hoeing these days has to be done by grandsons who come to visit him.

Despite the less efficient eyesight, neither of the aged men wears glasses.

"Too old to get used to 'em," remarked one and the other nodded affirmation.

"Youngsters, and old folks too, are different these days from those of 100 years ago," opined Uncle Ben Hodge to the third person at the meeting. "Now Uncle Tommy and I remember, when we were boys—"

And the reminiscences were related, first by one 118-year-old raconteur and then by the other.

Uncle Tommy, in addition to gardening, keeps "young" by chopping wood when his rheumatism isn't bothering. Uncle Ben takes his exercise at weed cutting.

Thomas N. Kemp, above, although 118 years old, still chops wood. Benjamin Hodge, insert, who is the same age, cuts weeds for exercise.
